09 Your chart: four pillars, Five Elements, Ten Gods and luck cycles

01 Compatibility score

One number for the pair, made of three parts. 60 and up is a good fit; under 45 means real work.

Harmony 58 · Clash 22 · How your Day Masters meet: 甲 → 壬 They fuel you

02 Your element mix, side by side

Left: you. Right: them. Where one is high and the other low, one of you brings what the other lacks.

Plenty of Metal between you; very little Wood.

03 Pillar by pillar: where your charts meet

Each square is one of your pillars (rows) against one of theirs (columns). Combine and Three Harmony pull you together; Clash, Punishment and Harm are where you rub. The Day–Day square is the closest bond.

You ↓ Them →

	Year 午	Month 戌	Day 申	Hour 酉
You · Year 申	·	·	同 Same	·
You · Month 申	·	·	同 Same	·
You · Day 子	冲 Clash	·	三合 Harmony	·
You · Hour 巳	·	·	合 Combine	三合 Harmony

合 Combine: Pull together
三合 Harmony: Work in the same direction
冲 Clash: Push against each other
刑 Punishment: Old sore spots get pressed
害 Harm: Quiet misunderstandings

04 Your reading

The two of you

Support that arrives before it is requested. You and Sam find that big moves feel lighter together, because Sam steadies you and the timing between you rarely needs negotiating. Your Day Master is fed by Sam's, so Sam naturally supports and steadies you. You bring the direction and Sam brings the staying power, which makes the pair feel grounded. As a Wood Day Master, you bring growth, plans, learning and reaching out to the relationship. As a Water Day Master, Sam brings flow, ideas, communication and adaptability to the relationship.

Daily rhythm

Your daily rhythm with Sam works best when you take the lead and Sam provides the steadying presence. Plan regular downtime together, but also respect each other's need for space, as Sam's support helps you recharge without feeling pressured. You and Sam share the same pace, both Yang or both Yin, which feels easy but can double the same habit, so name one routine you will each vary on purpose.

Communication

As a Wood Day Master, you tend to talk in plans and possibilities, and listen for where things are heading; messages get lost when you push for progress before the other person has finished thinking. Sam tends to talk in stories and hints, and listens for the feeling underneath. To help them hear you, state the plain point first and ask what they understood.

05 Points of tension

Not a verdict: these are the places the two charts push on each other, strongest first.

Sparks in the room · Strong

You · Day 子 / Them · Year 午

Try this: Name the decision out loud before either of you steamrolls the day.

Watch for: Heat jumps. One of you pushes; the other braces.

The easy lock · Mild

You · Day 子 / Them · Day 申

Try this: Use the easy pull for the hard task: start together, then split the finish.

Watch for: You agree so fast you skip the check. Agreement is not a plan.

The easy lock · Mild

You · Hour 巳 / Them · Day 申

Try this: Use the easy pull for the hard task: start together, then split the finish.

Watch for: You agree so fast you skip the check. Agreement is not a plan.

Who sets the pace · Mild

You · Day Wood / Them · Day Water

Try this: Say who is leading this one. One leads, one follows, then swap.

Watch for: Whoever is louder sets the tempo. The other waits, then withdraws.

The missing piece · Mild

Try this: Name the missing piece out loud and let one of you own it.

Watch for: Each of you fills the hole with your own habit. The gap stays.

06 What each of you needs, and what the other offers

You need

08 The next 12 months for both of you

Each month scored for each chart (lines) and its tone for the pair (the strip: green easy, grey steady, red tense).

09 Just for fun

Picked from your two charts together: the element you share most sets the mood, the one you both lack sets the menu.

Where to go

A cocktail bar, gallery or somewhere refined

What to eat

Fresh greens, herbs and something sour: salads, pickles, green tea

What to watch

Heists, thrillers and sharp documentaries

What to do

A museum, a workshop, or a well-planned trip

Money

With Resource stars strong, you treat money as a cushion rather than a scoreboard: you save for quiet and security, and you feel safest in a relationship when there is a steady backup behind you both. With Resource stars strong, Sam treats money as a cushion rather than a scoreboard, saving for security and feeling safest in a relationship when there is a steady backup behind you both. Since you treat money in a similar way, agree on one shared goal and check the habit you share does not run unchecked.

Conflict and repair

A branch clash between your charts brings sudden friction and opposite instincts. It often starts over small, practical things, you react by pulling back to think while Sam pushes to resolve it right away. To repair it, pause and name the pattern out loud, then agree to revisit the issue after a short break. You and Sam agree easily, so hard talks get postponed until small annoyances harden into resentment. You tend to smooth things over, while Sam waits for a better moment that never comes. Book a short weekly check-in where each of you names one thing that is not fine, before it piles up.

What each of you needs

You are shaped by Resource stars, so you run on support, study and proper rest, and you do your best work when someone backs you quietly. What you need from a partner is steadiness: someone who asks how you are and gives you room to think before you answer. Sam is shaped by Resource stars, running on support, study and proper rest, and does best when quietly backed. What Sam needs from a partner is steadiness: someone who asks how Sam is and allows time to think before answering.

The year ahead

The next twelve months for a couple: a mix of easy and tense months. The easiest months are April 2027; the tensest are February 2027 and June 2027. Plan shared decisions and time together in April 2027, and keep February 2027 and June 2027 for routine and space; raise anything difficult in April 2027, not February 2027 and June 2027.

Three things to keep

Notice how Sam steadies you and say it out loud when it happens. Let Sam carry the practical side of one shared plan each month, then check in briefly. Give back in your own way, so the support stays a two-way habit rather than a default.

How this was worked out

Both charts are drawn from the birth details, then compared: how your Day Masters interact, how the elements complement each other, where your branches harmonise or clash, and which friction patterns are built in. Each of you also has a running 10-year luck cycle, and the next twelve months are scored for the two of you. The report puts all of this into plain, practical sections.
